USPA NEWS - Translated by Saif Hamid Wanas

On Tuesday, March 27, the US Ambassador to Iraq, Mr. Douglas Soliman, met with a number of Iraqi women journalists. The meeting discussed issues related to the post-emergency phase, economic development and the reality of media women in Iraq and ways to develop them.

At the beginning of the meeting, the ambassador congratulated the Iraqi forces on the victories achieved on ISIS

He stressed: The process of liberation achieved did not mean that the ideas and rebellion, which wants to create an advocate has ended

The United States will work with the Iraqi government and security forces

To provide economic support for the reconstruction of liberated areas

He also stressed the need to search for women in liberated areas had the same story and the courage of Umm Qusay in the face of a call to deliver to the media to identify the world to those national figures.

An important and constructive discussion was held between the Ambassador and the media about the need to develop the capabilities of Iraqi female journalists through the establishment of courses and workshops to develop their skills so that they can contribute
